

Dominica Bookshelf

Stories From Dominica & the Caribbean

Heliconia Drive
Belfast, Dominica
Tel: (767) 277 2911, 315 5150, 448 4275
WhatsApp: (767) 277 2911
Email: dadigital767@gmail.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New Book on Caribbean World War II History to Be Donated to Local Educational Institutions

Roseau, Dominica — June 6, 2026

Ten secondary schools across Dominica, along with the Dominica State College, will this week receive complimentary copies of the recently published book Sea Wolves in Warm Waters: The U-Boat Battle in the Caribbean, written by Dominican author Clement Richards.

Sea Wolves in Warm Waters is Richards' second publication, following his debut novel, Indian Warner: Son of Two Worlds, which was published last year. His latest work offers a compelling account of the little-known events that unfolded when German U-boats entered the warm waters of the Caribbean during World War II, bringing the global conflict directly into the region.

According to Richards, "This is a very important segment of recent Caribbean history that is generally overlooked or forgotten. The book is an attempt to inform and educate readers in the region and beyond about its importance and significance."

The donation of copies to local educational institutions is being made by the Law Offices of Gabriel J. Christian & Associates LLC based in Maryland, USA, in collaboration with the Rebuild Dominica Organization. This initiative reflects a shared commitment to supporting education, strengthening historical awareness, and encouraging wider engagement with works by Dominican and Caribbean authors.

The presentation of the books will take place on Friday, June 5, 2026, at 10:00 a.m. at the Archives Unit, Kennedy Avenue, Roseau. The occasion will feature remarks by the author, Mr. Clement Richards; a video message from the donor of the books, Mr. Gabriel Christian; and remarks by Mr. Prince St Jean, Officer-in-Charge, Dominica Library and Information Service. In addition, an excerpt from the book will be read by a student of the St. Martin Secondary School, while acceptance remarks on behalf of the participating educational institutions will be delivered by a representative of the Pierre Charles Secondary School.

It is anticipated that this donation will help broaden student access to locally and regionally relevant historical works, while encouraging greater use of books by Dominican and Caribbean authors within the education system. It is also hoped that the initiative will inspire deeper interest among students in Dominica's place within wider Caribbean and global history.

Clement Richards

Author

Sea Wolves in Warm Waters: The U-Boat Battle in the Caribbean